DETAILED ACTION

1. Claims 1-4 and 7-9 are pending.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

2. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(e) the invention was described in (1) an application for patent, published under section 122(b), by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent or (2) a patent granted on an application for patent by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent, except that an international application filed under the treaty defined in section 351(a) shall have the effects for purposes of this subsection of an application filed in the United States only if the international application designated the United States and was published under Article 21(2) of such treaty in the English language.

3. Claims 1-4 and 7-9 are rejected under 35 USC 102(e) as being anticipated by Christie, IV, et al (US 6,324,265).

Claims 1, 4 and 7, Christie discloses a distributed system for establishing a voice communication session, the voice communication session being established by executing a series of functions, said distributed system comprising (referring to figure 1A): a client device (104,106, 111, 113) constituting an originating point of the voice communication session; a plurality of server (voice mail server 116, e-mail server 117, audio stream server 118) capable to be placed in a data communicative relationship with said client (104, 106), each server (116, 117, 118) being capable of establishing a data exchange transaction with the client device (104, 106) to execute a certain function of the communication session.

Christie teaches, "IP network 100 may also include an electronic mail (e-mail) server 117 for processing e-mail or other messages. Examples of messages include, but are not limited to, information. A media stream server 118 provides multimedia connections through IP packet network 100 to various sources. A gatekeeper 115 provides and controls services through the network such as call waiting. Other devices may interface IP network 100, such as a device for transmitting video information.", (col. 3, line 40-53).

Christie further teach each server being characterized in that it establishes a data exchange transaction with said client device in a manner autonomous from a data exchange transaction between said client device and a different server.

Christie teaches, "Communication devices are thus media independent", (col. 3, line 40-53).

Claims 2 and 3, a "server", such as that discloses by Christie, is a computing device including a processor for processing digital data, a memory coupled to processor for storing digital data, an input digitizer coupled to the processor for inputting digital data, an application program stored in memory and accessible by processor for directing processing of digital data by processor, a display coupled to the processor and memory for displaying information derived from digital data processed by processor and a plurality of databases (see figure 1B).

Art Unit: 2664

Claims 8 and 9, Christie teaches that the establishment of a data exchange transaction between said client device and a server comprises the exchange of data packets (request message) between said client device and the server; wherein said data packets are IP data packet, (see figure 1A).

Conclusion

4. Christie, IV et al has been reconsidered thus the rejections of claims 1-4 and 7-9 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(e).
